Yesterday's Trading Issue

- We regret the systems outage that delayed yesterday's opening of CBOE. We have isolated the software issue that caused the problem and made the necessary adjustments for a normal opening this morning. We are also conducting an ongoing and thorough internal review of the software problem to prevent something like this from happening again. Moreover, we determined that the issue was in no way related to a cyber-attack. We apologize for any inconvenience that this may have caused. See CBOE Information Circular IC13-034.

- The video can be found on our special 40th Anniversary Page, which also includes the "CBOE Memories" blog -- colorful stories submitted by long-time traders and staff, video vignettes with former members, a historical photo gallery and timeline of innovation through the years.
